Dracontyr – and - Death

*From nothing...
Did Urhir emerge...
The Guardians in tending...
A new world mending...
Across its face...
The Ancients surge.*

*Then Dracontyr from stars descended,
To lay claim on Urhir's fate,
Guardians resist too late,
And accept their time has ended.*

*Afterlands the Guardians claim,
Shepherd passing souls eternal,
Dracontyr their schemes infernal,
Contrive to make Urhir their game.*

*In shadow creeps a final Guardian beast,
Who slams the gates to Afterlands,
Denying desperate souls demands,
So begins Ghast's gruesome feast.*

*Has death itself succumbed
to time's cruel test?
Or will our wayward spirits
find true rest?*

*The Dracontyr do balance find,
Each takes a role in guiding life,
And shaping of the Ancients strife,
Creation tempered by their mind.*

*The Dragon, Ossus, pale breath,
Heard captured spirits' cries of woe,
And saw in Ghast a worthy foe,
And thus became the Dracontyr of Death.*

*The Ancients' battles thus define an age,
Till Boreas, the Dracontyr of air,
Creates the Wulfen race to bravely dare,
Ghast's armies torn asunder by their rage.*

*Defeated, Ghast's decaying form withdrew,
To fester in the dark, a bitter blight,
Until the Aelvyn-Druvan wars ignite,
Then twists the Humans to his view.*

*Has death itself succumbed
to time's cruel test?
Or will our wayward spirits
find true rest?*

*Whatever happened to the Dracontyr?
Where are you Ossus? Thea? Boreas?
Empires fall, but what of us,
Trapped in undying fear.*

*Has death itself succumbed
to time's cruel test?
Or will our wayward spirits
find true rest?*
